5 Must-Do Yellowstone Adventures

In Yellowstone National Park, there's no shortage of adventures. Whether you sign up for a guided tour with a knowledgeable park professional or choose to experience Yellowstone on your own, there's plenty to experience and discover! In fact, you may have a hard time choosing what to do during your visit.

To help you out, we're sharing five of our favorite "must-do" experiences.

1. Discover Yellowstone by horseback.

Saddle up and explore one of Yellowstone's scenic trails. Choose a one- or two-hour ride on either the Roosevelt or Canyon trails. From atop your trusty mount, you'll see stunning park views and breathtaking scenery. Horseback rides are available June through September (Roosevelt-page 26 and Canyon-page 22). You can even combine a ride with an Old West dinner cookout! Age, weight, and height limitations apply.

2. Wake up to wildlife.

In the early morning, the animals of Yellowstone National Park are most active, and visitors are likely to spot plenty of critters. The Wake Up to Wildlife tour departs at dawn for Lamar Valley, where expansive views provide the best opportunities to spot all kinds of wild animals. Board the historic Yellow Bus, where you can enjoy muffins and juice, and get your day started on an exciting note! The early bird gets the worm...or bear, or antelope. More details on location pages 8, 22, 26.

3. Set sail for adventure.

Exploring Yellowstone on land is great, but don't forget about the opportunities to have fun on the water too. Rent a 40hp, 18-foot motorboat for an hour or the entire day! Spend an afternoon cruising around or go fishing - whatever floats your boat. Boats are rented to groups of 2-6 people during the June-September season. More details on location pages 16, 28.

4. Explore the largest body of water in Yellowstone Park.

During a one-hour Scenicruise tour aboard the Lake Queen II, you can spot eagles, osprey, and other waterfowl, and maybe even elk or bison! You'll also see the remains of the SS E.C. Waters, an abandoned steamship near the shore of Stevenson Island, and hear all about the interesting character who had the ship built. More details on location pages 16, 28.

5. Experience a full day of park touring!

The Yellowstone in a Day tour travels the park's Grand Loop, with stops at the Old Faithful Geyser and Old Faithful Inn, the Upper and Lower Falls of the Grand Canyon of the Yellowstone, Canyon Village, and other spots along the way. Keep your eyes peeled for wildlife! This tour is also a great introduction to the park, providing an excellent overview of Yellowstone's highlights. More details on location pages 8, 13.

National Park Service Visitor Centers & Programs

VISITOR CENTERS

Take time to visit one or all of the Visitor Centers. Each has a unique theme and a Yellowstone Forever bookstore. National Park Visitor Centers are located at:

- Mammoth Hot Springs - The Albright Visitor Center (and all the red-roofed houses with many chimneys down the street from it) were built by the U.S. Cavalry as Fort Yellowstone, an Army post dedicated to protecting the first national park. The beautiful stone building recently received a full interior renovation. The new exhibits focus on the ecology of Yellowstone's Northern Range, the development of the National Park idea, and the history of Fort Yellowstone. An orientation area with interactive displays offers enhanced trip planning information and Park Rangers give educational talks and tours throughout the year.

- Norris Area - The Museum of the National Park Ranger is located at the entrance to the Norris Campground. Formerly the Norris Soldier Station, exhibits in the building depict the development of the Park Ranger profession, from its roots in the military tradition and early Rangers to the present array of NPS staff specialized duties. The Norris Geyser Basin Museum features information on thermal features and is located on the main walkway to the geyser basin.

- Madison - The Madison Information Station and Trailside Museum was built in 1929-30. This small building currently houses the Junior Ranger Station and a Yellowstone Forever bookstore.

- Old Faithful - The Old Faithful Visitor Education Center, which opened in 2010, contains exciting interactive exhibits explaining Yellowstone's rare thermal features and a Young Scientist room for visitors of all ages. The theater features frequent showings of park videos. For geyser predictions, stop at the Visitor Education Center, call 307-344-2751, or follow on Twitter @GeysersNPS.

- Grant Village - The theme of the Grant Village Visitor Center is the fires of 1988 and the role of fire in Yellowstone.

- Fishing Bridge - The Fishing Bridge Visitor Center and Trailside Museum* is located one mile east of Fishing Bridge Junction on the East Entrance Road. Built in 1931, it is a National Historic Landmark and houses historic bird specimens and other animal mounts.

- Canyon Village - The Canyon Visitor Education Center features Yellowstone's supervolcano concept. Through interactive exhibits, animations, audio-visuals, and real-time scientific data you will gain understanding about how Yellowstone's volcano, its geysers, hot springs, and geologic history affects all life here.

- West Yellowstone Information Center - The West Yellowstone Visitor Information Center is located outside the West Entrance of the park and is managed jointly with the West Yellowstone Chamber of Commerce and the US Forest Service. It is a good location for visitors to get oriented to the park, forests, and businesses available in the area.

RANGER-LED PROGRAMS

Join a Yellowstone Park Ranger for educational programs including talks, walks, evening campfire programs, and other activities. Programs are presented from Memorial Day weekend through September, and during the winter season. Check at NPS Visitor Center desks, in the Yellowstone Today newspaper (distributed at the entrance station when you arrived) or online at www.nps.gov/yell for more information on these programs.

Visiting Yellowstone with Kids

If it's your first time visiting Yellowstone with children, we have a few tips to share that will make your trip easier and more fun for the whole family.

There's going to be a lot of driving, so plan accordingly! Yellowstone is huge - 3,000 square miles, in fact - and it can take a couple of hours of driving to get from one attraction to another. There's plenty to look at, from breathtaking scenery to wildlife. Make frequent stops to give kids the chance to walk trails, take pictures, or draw things they see. Encourage kids to keep a journal of their park experience, or pick up books about Yellowstone in the Visitor Center bookstores or park gift shops for them to read during long stretches in the car.

Grab a wildlife scavenger hunt sheet. As you enter the park, ask the Ranger at the station for a kids' wildlife scavenger hunt sheet and turn your sightseeing into a game! (This can also help you pass some of the long hours in the car, too.)

Be sure to pack snacks and lunches. With so much space between food service stations, you won't always be able to hop out of the car to grab some trail mix and bottled water. If you have room in your vehicle, fill a cooler with lunches and snacks and enjoy your meals at some of the well-marked picnic spots. There are plenty of places to buy ice and other supplies. Deli lunches and to-go food can be purchased at the park's restaurants, snack shops, and delis.

Establish basic safety rules. Kids have a tendency to want to get as close as they can to animals. Of course, when those animals are wild, this isn't a safe option. Make sure your kids keep a safe distance from any animals you spot during your exploration. National Park Service rules require staying at least 25 yards from most animals (elk, bison, moose, coyotes, etc) and 100 yards from bears and wolves. A good rule for your kids is to stay on the path and not run ahead - everybody sticks together!

Remember that you're going off the grid. In Yellowstone, there's no TV, radio, and limited wifi and cell service (wireless internet is available for a fee at select lodging facilities), so kids should be prepared for what will likely be a drastic change from their everyday lives. But there are plenty of ways to keep busy! Kids can use their smartphones or tablets in different ways, such as for taking photos to create photo collage souvenirs, or collecting video clips to make a movie of their adventure. In the evenings, you can play board games in the lobbies of historic lodges like the Mammoth Hotel, Old Faithful Inn, and Lake Lodge, or attend the evening Ranger programs, most of which are free.

Check out the Junior Ranger program. Designed for kids ages 4 and up, the self-guided Junior Ranger Program is a great way to introduce kids to the natural wonders of Yellowstone. Booklets are available for just $3, and upon completing the age-appropriate activities listed inside the booklet, participants will receive an official Yellowstone Junior Ranger patch that's modeled after the National Park Service patch.

Give the Young Scientist Program a try! Suited for children age 5 and up, the Young Scientist program encourages kids to explore both the visitor centers and the park itself to solve age-appropriate science mysteries. Program booklets can be purchased for $5 at the Canyon Visitor Education Center or Old Faithful Visitor Center. Participants who complete the program's requirements will receive either a patch (ages 5-13) or a keychain (ages 14+).

If your kids are 3 or younger, bring a stroller. Little legs get tired quickly, and with so much ground to cover, you might not make it very far down the trail before you hear, "I'm tiiiiired!" Err on the side of caution and bring a stroller along.

Tips for Summer Wildlife Viewing

Yellowstone National Park is a place of natural wonders and geothermal phenomena, with an abundance of diverse, free roaming wildlife. Wolves, bison, bears, otters, bald eagles, deer, elk, moose, ravens, foxes, and more call the park home. Each year these animals captivate park visitors from around the world. In the summertime, Yellowstone is full of new life and color, and the weather is at its warmest.

To have the best Yellowstone summer wildlife viewing experience, it's important to remember that the park's animals are as wild as the landscape they inhabit. Here are our top ten tips for wildlife viewing:

1. Go where the wildlife is.

Yellowstone's huge, wide valleys make excellent habitats for wildlife. Your best chance to spot bears, wolves, bison, pronghorn, and many other species, is to head to Lamar Valley in Yellowstone's Northern Range. Hayden Valley is another prime spot, especially for bison in the late summer during their mating season, or "rut." Mammoth Hot Springs seems to have elk almost year-round.

2. Early birds and night owls catch the worms.

Yellowstone's wildlife is most active in the early morning and evenings, away from the heat of the day. This is also the time when most park visitors have yet to arrive, or have retired for the evening.

3. Take the time to prepare.

It's important to make sure you are prepared for your wildlife viewing adventure. Even in summer, you should pack warm clothing and dress in layers. Make sure you bring extra clothing in case the weather changes during your trip. Also, don't forget to bring your binoculars and/or spotting scope!

4. Don't feed wild animals.

Do not feed any animals, even birds and squirrels. Consuming human food is unhealthy for wildlife. Once an animal associates humans with food, the animal can exhibit aggressive behavior in its attempts to find more.

Store food in the car or hard-sided camper when not eating or attending to it. The common saying is, "a fed bear is a dead bear" and can apply to other animals as well.

5. Maintain a safe distance from Yellowstone's wildlife.

Always make sure you keep at least 100 yards (91 m) between you and bears and wolves. Stay 25 yards (23 m) away from all other animals. If the animal moves closer to you—back away and give them space.

Do not surround, crowd, or disrupt an animal's path of movement. If your activity causes the animal to change its ongoing behavior, whether the animal is eating, resting, standing still, etc., stop what you're doing and move away. The goal of wildlife viewing is to observe animals without interrupting their normal activities and to avoid giving the animal the sense that you are a danger.

6. Be respectful and courteous.

It's always important to respect the wildlife and to not disturb them or their habitats. It's also important to be respectful of other viewers and park property. Often you'll know where wildlife has been spotted – you'll notice park visitors in a turnout using binoculars and spotting scopes. When stopping to join, make sure you are courteous and safe in approaching the turnout and wildlife watchers. They may be willing to allow you to look through their scopes if you ask politely. Also, it's critical to park your vehicle legally, and in a way that does not block traffic, nor damage vegetation or park resources.

7. Listen, don't just look.

Take the time to listen to the natural sounds around you- this can help with spotting wildlife. You may hear the call of an animal, birds chirping, and other noises that could tip you off to an animal being nearby.

8. Know your bear safety.

It's very important to always be prepared for your adventure. Carrying bear spray and knowing how to use it could make all of the difference. Remember to stay 100 yards (91m) away from bears at all times and never run from a bear- they have an instinct to chase. Learn more about bear safety in Yellowstone.

9. The more photos you take, the better.

Capturing the perfect photo of a wild animal can be challenging because they're constantly moving. The more photos you snap, the more likely you will get the shot you wanted all along.

10. Take a tour with an expert guide.

One of the safest and most productive ways to view wildlife in Yellowstone is to take a guided tour with a park expert. Discover the park's wildlife on:

Upper Geyser Basin

Yellowstone is home to more thermal features than anywhere in the world—and you're smack-dab in the middle of it! One of our favorite walks in the Old Faithful area takes you down to Morning Glory Pool and loops back past many amazing features that should not be missed. 3-mile round-trip walk.

Lone Star Geyser Trail

Hike or even bike along the Firehole River to this cone geyser which erupts for 30 minutes about every 3 hours. Bring a box lunch and spend some quality time in this lovely area. An easy, 4.8-mile round-trip hike from the trailhead just south of Kepler Cascades parking area.

Observation Point

Take the boardwalk across the Firehole River and follow the signs up the hill. You'll have a bird's-eye view of the geyser basin and a front-row seat for Old Faithful's eruption. This is a steep 1-mile round-trip hike, but worth the effort.

AT THE END OF THE DAY...

Twilight on the Firehole

The Firehole (or Fire Hole) was named by the mountain men of the 19th century. What they experienced then still inspires visitors today. Exploring the Firehole area during the later part of the day is especially appealing as evening is a "golden hour" in Yellowstone. That later daylight adds a dramatic hue to the landscape, and wildlife tends to be more active in early mornings and evenings. This tour allows us to introduce you to an evening in the Firehole.

The 3-mile trail starts at the Indian Pond turnout three miles east of the Fishing Bridge Visitor Center and passes through an open meadow, a forested area, and then takes you along the lakeshore. Trail Mix: 12 Awesome Day Hikes in Yellowstone

By Jim Morrison

Yellowstone National Park covers more than 2.2 million acres with more than 900 miles of hiking trails in backcountry wilderness. If you can't find a trail here, you can't find it anywhere.

Stop by a Ranger station or the Visitor Center for the latest information on the condition of trails. They may be closed. Ask about bear activity, weather, and fires in the area. No permit is required for day hiking in the park, but permits are required for overnight camping. It's impossible to explore all the beauty Yellowstone has to offer. So we've culled 12 great day hikes from the herd, each with a charm and a challenge.

Storm Point Trail (2.3 mile loop)

Level of Difficulty: Easy. Location: Fishing Bridge and Lake Village Area.

This is a flat, fun loop through a forest leading to a rocky peninsula jutting into Lake Yellowstone. You get the trifecta of forest, beach, and water all in one trip.

The Payoff: A great place to get away from the crowds and enjoy the beauty of a wilderness sunrise or sunset.

Trout Lake (1.2 miles)

Level of Difficulty: Easy. Location: Lamar Valley.

The Trout Lake hike is a pleasant walk in the woods where you might see otters feeding on cutthroat trout in the river or bears foraging. Ospreys dart from the sky to fish as well. The trail rises 150 feet through a Douglas fir forest to the lake.

The Payoff: A chance for some stellar wildlife viewing. Bring your binoculars.

Grand Prismatic Overlook Trail (1.2 miles)

Level of Difficulty: Easy. Location: Old Faithful Area.

This trail gradually climbs 105 feet over 0.6 miles from the Fairy Falls Trailhead to a view looking down on Grand Prismatic Spring and the Midway Geyser Basin.

Tower Fall Overlook (1 mile)

Level of Difficulty: Easy. Location: Tower-Roosevelt region.

The 132-foot waterfall on Tower Creek is stunning, crashing onto the rocks below. This very short hike features minarets sculpted by water through the basalt formation.

The Payoff: A stellar photo opportunity for very little effort.

Uncle Tom's Trail (0.7 miles)

Level of Difficulty: Moderate. Location: Canyon Area.

Go ahead, take the stairs, if you dare. Uncle Tom's Trail carries you from the top of the Grand Canyon of the Yellowstone to the base of the 308-foot Lower Falls. This is more like climbing down and then back up a 20-story building. The vertical elevation change is about 500 feet at a steep angle. Don't worry. There are plenty of benches and places to rest.

The Payoff: The iconic Yellowstone view of the waterfalls from the bottom of the trail, complete with a rainbow if you're lucky. You will have an iconic view to rival the tunnel view at Yosemite or the view from the South Rim of the Grand Canyon. Check with Rangers regarding possible trail closure due to construction.

Beaver Ponds Loop (5 mile loop)

Level of Difficulty: Moderate. Location: Mammoth Hot Springs Area.

The trail begins steep, but mellows out with views of Gardner Canyon then leads to the ponds, which feature a beaver dam and lodge. It's generally not crowded and offers a good chance to see wildlife.

The Payoff: Feeling like you're alone in the backcountry wilderness on just a short hike.

Elephant Back Mountain Trail (3.5 miles)

Level of Difficulty: Moderate. Location: Fishing Bridge and Lake Village Area.

Make time for this short hike with stunning views across Yellowstone Lake and the peaks that border its eastern edge. The hike gains 800 feet to the summit, but the trail is well maintained and it doesn't feel that steep. The forest is open, making the viewing even easier. Try late afternoon or early evening for the best light.

The Payoff: Climbing a mountain without breaking too much of a sweat for an incredible vista.

Lone Star Geyser (5 miles)

Level of Difficulty: Easy. Location: Old Faithful Area.

This five-mile round trip starts with a cascade of falls and follows a river, first on one side and then the other, through a wooded valley to reach the centerpiece of Yellowstone's four backcountry geyser basins. The Lone Star Geyser erupts about every three hours. There are several log benches in the area where hikers can sit and watch for the geyser.

The Payoff: The best geyser and river hike combination in the park.

South Rim of the Canyon (4.5 mile loop)

Level of Difficulty: Moderate. Location: Canyon Area.

This is a must-do, a hike along the rim of the Grand Canyon of the Yellowstone with stunning panoramic views of both the canyon and falls. The canyon is 20 miles long, and from 800 to 1,200 feet deep, though the trail is a 4.5 mile loop when done completely. At Artist Point, you will have an iconic view to rival the tunnel view at Yosemite or the view from the South Rim of the Grand Canyon.

The Payoff: A chance to experience the roiling river and the stunning rhyolite rock formations of the canyon, guaranteed to fill the memory card on your camera.

Bunsen Peak Trail (4 miles)

Level of Difficulty: Strenuous. Location: Mammoth Area.

This four-mile hike is short, but requires some work nearing the summit to climb a series of steep switchbacks. The vistas of the Gallatin Mountain Range are the best in the park. You'll pass a stand of dead trees with an otherworldly feel and a rock formation called Cathedral Rock. There are plenty of photo opportunities.

The Payoff: If you're lucky you may reach the telecommunications equipment on top and find you have the summit all to yourself.

Mount Washburn Trail (5-6 miles)

Level of Difficulty: Strenuous. Location: Canyon Area.

The trail switches back and forth through a forested area with mountain top views of the Grand Tetons, and iconic in-park features like Old Faithful Geyser Basin and the Grand Canyon of the Yellowstone. During July, wildflowers blanket the mountain. You're likely to see bighorn sheep. Nearing the summit, the temperature drops and there are often afternoon storms. Start early if you want to avoid them.

The Payoff: It will seem like you're on the top of the world. You can sit inside the lookout on top and take panoramic shots in comfort at 10,243 feet.

Avalanche Peak (4 miles)

Level of Difficulty: Strenuous. Location: Fishing Bridge and Lake Village Area.

For many Yellowstone veterans, this is their favorite hike. It begins through forests of meadows with wildflowers, passes gurgling streams, may feature patches of snow even in summer, and concludes 2,100 feet higher on a barren peak with views that stretch across Lake Yellowstone. When the trail offers options, stick to the left so you can traverse the length of the ridge with the best views.

Photography Tips

Sign up for a Photo Safari.

Get an early start.

If you're hoping to capture some wildlife for your photo album, getting an early morning start is key (one of the reasons our Photo Safaris set out so early in the morning!). Animals are most active early in the day, and the morning light can be spectacular, so skip sleeping in and head out shortly after dawn for your best chance of snapping some great wildlife shots. Bonus: You'll also be able to capture a spectacular Yellowstone sunrise!

Don't forget about the "golden hour."

As the sun gets low in the sky at the end of the day, the park will be bathed in a warm, golden glow and the sky appears more saturated with color. Photographers call this the "golden hour" and there's a reason it's a preferred time of day for shooting everything from portraits to landscapes.

Experiment with framing your subjects in different ways.

If you're photographing people, keep your back to the sun.

This will help you to avoid situations where your subjects are dark silhouettes against a bright background. Try to shoot so that people are lit from the side to minimize squinting into direct sunlight.

Mix in some black-and-white shots.

Sure, Yellowstone's landscape is packed with vibrant colors, but sometimes a black-and-white photo can have a dramatic, artistic effect. Try mixing some monochromatic photos into your collection.

Consider a polarizing filter.

Polarizing camera filters can help reduce the glare from bodies of water, darkened skies, and adjust the balance of light in a photo. Many nature photographers use polarizing filters to capture brilliant outdoor images. If you're using Instagram to edit your photos, Valencia is an ideal filter for replicating the look of a polarizer.

Experiment with different filters, angles, and zooms. Once you're reviewing your pictures later, you might be surprised at some of the excellent shots you've captured by accident!

Keep your distance. While it might be tempting to attempt a close-up shot of some of Yellowstone's wildlife, be sure to stay a safe distance from any animals you encounter. Stay at least 100 yards from bears and wolves and at least 25 yards from other large animals. When viewing any wildlife along roads, use pullouts for extra safety and to avoid blocking traffic.

Don't forget to be present.

In the quest for the perfect photo, it's easy to spend your entire day at Yellowstone looking at the park from behind a lens, but don't forget to put your camera down from time to time to fully experience the special moments as well.

How to Travel Sustainably in Yellowstone

At Yellowstone National Park, we're proud of our sustainability efforts. As a visitor, you can help too! Sustainable travel is all about making simple choices to reduce negative impacts on your destination. We've put together a list of sustainable travel tips to help make your visit to Yellowstone an eco- and park-friendly experience.

Pass on plastic.

Help reduce waste in landfills by packing a BPA-free reusable water bottle you can refill at water bottle filling stations available throughout the park. Disposable plastic drink bottles are very hard on the environment, both in terms of their manufacturing process and their disposal. We have removed all plastic bottled water from our operations in favor of easily recyclable canned water. That helps eliminate 250,000 plastic bottles a year from the landfill. By bringing or purchasing a reusable water bottle you're making a difference.

Know where to toss your trash. Sort it out. Waste not.

Bins for recycling and composting are located in our guest rooms, lobbies, and public areas. Sorting helps us divert over 60% of solid waste from the landfill annually. We can do even better with your help!

Opt Out of Housekeeping.

Staying more than one night? Ask the front desk about our green housekeeping program and save $5/night. By opting out of housekeeping services during multiple night stays, you'll help save resources by reducing the water required for linen and towel laundering and lessen the amount of cleaning products needed for daily maintenance of the guest room.

Be water wise.

Water is a precious commodity, especially in Yellowstone. Short showers, instead of baths, can save up to 10 gallons of water per person. Turning off the water between lather and rinse can save even more. Same goes when brushing teeth and shaving. Our record is a 1 minute shower.

Watch the watts.

Turn off all the lights when leaving your room. If your room is not dirty, consider leaving the "Green Housekeeping" sign on the door for the day. Housekeeping will skip vacuuming, and the use of cleaning products and water.

Take only pictures.

Yellowstone is packed with stunning scenery, captivating wildlife, and some of the world's most incredible natural wonders. It is a dream destination for photographers. So, take as many photos as you like, but make sure that is all you take with you. Never remove anything from its natural setting. For safety, and to avoid harming natural resources, stay on marked trails and walkways.

Give the gift of green.

If you're planning on shopping, bring a reusable bag. Consider purchasing environmentally friendly merchandise, such as items made locally or regionally, from recycled or sustainable materials, and reusable products. More than 43% of items in our gift shops are sustainably produced. We've eliminated plastic bags from our shops in favor of reusable tote bags, which are free with purchases over $50.

Chow down.

Fresh, local, and sustainable cuisine tastes great and is better for you and the environment. 58% of the food items in our restaurants are sustainable. Our goal is to increase that to 70% by 2025! But it's not just the food that matters. The Mammoth Hotel Dining Room is the first 4-Star Green Restaurant Association certified restaurant in a National Park.

Opt for green transportation.

Once you're in the park try to walk or bike as much as possible. Bike rentals are available at the Old Faithful Snow Lodge. Bike shop staff will help provide you with expert guidance about the best places to explore by bike, based on your interests and abilities.

Instead of driving your own car, consider taking part in a guided tour. Our knowledgeable park guides will turn the drive into an enjoyable and informative experience.

Avoid idle time. Every year in the US, idling motor vehicles costs Americans about $2.9 billion and generates 14.6 million tons of carbon dioxide. If you anticipate being parked for more than 10 seconds, like when stuck in a wildlife jam or road construction, turn off your engine to save fuel, reduce maintenance, reduce emissions, and save money.

Sleep on it.

The new Canyon Lodges have received the USGBC's Leadership in Energy and Environmental Design (LEED) Gold and Silver certifications. They feature recycled and renewable materials, are energy efficient, and used building processes that eliminated waste. They were recently named one of the 5 Hotels for the Eco-Conscious Traveler by the NY Times.

Why does it matter?

In Yellowstone—and in national parks across the country—the consequences of climate change have already begun to appear. Scientists monitor Yellowstone's snowpack levels, temperatures at different elevations and water sources, fire events, plant growth rates and pollen production, soil conditions and biodiversity, to gauge climate change's impacts on plant and wildlife shifts in growth cycles, migrations, and base geographic ranges.

By incorporating these tips into your Yellowstone visit and at home, you can help protect the incredible natural beauty of our public lands for future generations!

HIKING SAFETY

Minimize your risks of a bear encounter by making loud noises, shouting, or singing. Always carry bear spray in the backcountry. Hike in groups of 3 or more and use caution where vision is obstructed. Do not hike after dark. Avoid carcasses; bears often defend this source of food. Obtain more information by visiting a Ranger Station.

- Stay near your vehicle so you can retreat if the animal approaches.
- Do not stand in the road.
- Never surround, crowd, approach, or follow wildlife.
- Don't block an animal's line of travel.
- Do not run or move suddenly - this may cause predators to attack.
- If other people in the area are putting you in danger, leave the scene and/or notify a Park Ranger.
- Do not ever feed wildlife, including birds.
- Always carry bear spray when hiking backcountry trails.

Thermal Features In Yellowstone

FOUR TYPES OF THERMAL FEATURES

Geyser: A geyser is a hot spring with the intriguing habit of tossing underground water in the air. It's the equivalent of a giant pressure cooker. Even though the temperature of water deep down may be well above boiling, the weight and pressure of the water above prevents that boiling from happening. Eventually, though, the pressure builds enough to push the water in the upper reaches up and out, causing an overflow. That overflow, in turn, relieves the pressure on the super-heated water below, causing it to flash into steam. That flash, that explosion through a narrow, constricted place in the rocks, is what sends water shooting into the air.

Hot Spring: Hot springs are similar to geysers, but they have no constrictions in their plumbing. Convection prevents water from reaching the temperature needed to set off the chain reaction leading to an eruption. The many beautiful colors you see in hot springs are caused by light refraction, suspended mineral particles, and heat-loving microorganisms.

Fumarole (also called a steam vent): In simplest terms, a fumarole is a vent in the Earth's crust. Modest amounts of groundwater come into contact with hot rocks underground and are turned to steam. This steam rushes up through a series of cracks and fissures and out the vent, sometimes with enough force to create a loud hiss or roar.

Mudpot: Mudpots occur in places where microorganisms help convert hydrogen sulfide, which rises from deep within the earth, into sulfuric acid. The acid dissolves surrounding rock into clay, which mixes with rising steam and groundwater to form mud of varying colors and consistencies.

HIKING AROUND THE PARK AND THERMAL FEATURES

We invite you to spend some time hiking the area's scenic trails. The thin ground in the thermal areas breaks easily, and often overlies scalding water. Stay on the trail. There are numerous trails suitable for day hiking. Begin your hike by stopping at a Ranger Station or Visitor Center for information. Trail conditions may change suddenly and unexpectedly. Bear activity, rain or snow storms, high water, and fires may temporarily close trails. At a minimum, carry water, a raincoat or poncho, a warm hat, insect repellent, sunscreen, and a first aid kit. It is recommended that you hike with a party size of three or more, and carry bear spray. No permit is required for day hiking.

WHAT ARE THOSE COLORS?

The vivid colors are the result of pigmented bacteria in the microbial mats that grow around the edges of the mineral-rich water. The bacteria produce multiple colors; the amount of color in the microbial mats depends on the ratio of chlorophyll to carotenoids and on the temperature of the water which favors one bacterium over another.

Working in Yellowstone

Yellowstone is an unparalleled World Heritage Site and renowned vacation destination. The lucky few who work here can tell stories of adventure, life-changing experiences, professional evolution, and lifelong friendships. It is a truly inspiring place to live and play.

With visitors and staff from every state and around the world, you'll have a unique opportunity to engage with various cultures and gain invaluable career experience. Maybe you'll stay for a couple seasons, a couple decades, or find another adventure along the way. In Yellowstone, you have the chance to create profound experiences with special people who share the same passions, values, and interests.

Let us introduce you to the magic of this place, and one of its best features: our team members.

How a Summer in Yellowstone Changed Everything

By Karley Nugent

As human beings, we long for a sense of purpose, and we crave adventure.

We have to take risks to bring ourselves where we're meant to be but often lack the courage to pursue these desires. But when we do break away from the familiar and pursue our passions, we can accomplish incredible things.

She signed up for a seasonal job online and found herself on the open road armed with a box full of clothes, her camera and a heart full of dreams.

When she left, she questioned whether she'd actually find whatever she was looking for. From that first mile marker outside her hometown to the eastern entrance of Yellowstone, she had never felt so much uncertainty in her entire life. However, over all of that anxiety, she knew one truth: if she didn't make a change then, she never would. The thought of continuing a life as boring as hers had been terrifying her.

So she took the chance and never looked back.

She greeted everyone she met with warm smiles, forming bonds with people from all walks of life. The people of Yellowstone taught her that no matter where they come from, all people are humans who were meant to come together and share love. And she learned that people are part of what makes Yellowstone so special.

She spent more time outside than she ever had to better understand the wildlife that shared this home with her. She watched bison battle their way to herd dominance. She beheld wolf cubs playing while their pack leaders kept watchful eyes over them. She heard the shriek of the elk signaling the changing of the seasons and saw bears exploring the changing environments just as she was. She learned that the animals of Yellowstone live at their own pace. They exist simply and happily.

She visited places few people see or know. She stood atop petrified trees, scaled mountains, wandered through valleys, gazed into canyons and looked on as the Yellowstone caldera shot boiling waters up 100 feet high. There were nights she slept outside and would gaze into infinity. She did all of these things and more. And by the end of her time there, she felt tears streaming down her face when she had to leave.

By now you've probably figured out who the main character in this story is. That girl is me. To say that my time in Yellowstone changed me would be an understatement to the highest degree. Yellowstone gave me everything I could have asked for and more. My time there taught me who I am as a person; it showed me what I value most and where I want to go in my life.

It all happened because I took the chance. From the pictures I took to the friendships I made, I will always regard that summer as the best summer of my life.

I challenge you to find your Yellowstone, too. Don't be afraid, go out and see what the world has to offer! Never back away from the opportunity to discover new things and places. In the end, we are defined by what we did with the time we are given and the chances we take in our lives.

Go out and find yourself; who you really are just might surprise you.

10 Reasons to Visit Yellowstone in Winter

Yellowstone is spectacular in winter. Blanketed by snow, the 2.2-million-acre park exudes a mythical beauty. The abundance of warm-weather visitors that make Yellowstone the fourth most visited National Park are gone and the wildlife and world-famous geysers as well as the bubbling mudpots, hissing fumaroles (steam vents), and hot springs remain.

Here's why it's worth bundling up to visit the park from mid-December through March.

1. Experience the park as few others do.

In winter, park access is primarily by guided oversnow transportation and experiencing Yellowstone's canyons, woods, wildlife, and hydrothermal forces can be a much more intimate experience.

2. See the geysers against the snow.

The contrast of the grayish-white steam of the geysers against the snow and the stunningly blue skies creates a heightened sense of the Earth's powerful forces. In winter when Old Faithful, the geyser that regularly shoots sprays of water more than 100 feet in the air, erupts, the near-boiling water hits the chilly air forming "geyser rain." Watch as these tiny icy crystals and flakes fall to the ground.

3. Spot animals easily.

Against the snowy background, the elk, bison, wolves, and other animals become relatively easy to spot and you can also see their tracks in the snow.

4. View bison with winter coats.

In winter huge balls of snow dangle from the bison's beards and especially in geyser basins they get a frosty covering. That, combined with the beasts' breath hanging in the frigid air like fire, make the formidable animals look even more impressive.

5. Snowshoe and cross-country ski.

Yellowstone offers miles of trails that lead past frosty woods, steaming hot springs, and snow-covered meadows. You won't soon forget gliding within sight of a bison herd or striding near elk tracks. You can learn about the wildlife and the winter ecology on guided snowshoe and cross-country ski tours. These are available through February.

6. Take a snowcoach tour.

See Old Faithful and the park's Grand Canyon in the comfort of a snowcoach, a small bus-like vehicle equipped to maneuver on Yellowstone's wintry roads. From the third week of December through the end of February, most park roads close and snowcoaches and snowmobiles provide much of the transportation.

7. Sign-up for a Lodging & Learning program.

Our award-winning Lodging & Learning programs combine the renowned expertise of the Yellowstone Forever Institute and our own lodging, food, and transportation services. "Hands-on" exploration of the park in winter will excite your mind and body. See next page for details.

8. Go on a Winter Photo Safari.

The contrasts of clear blue skies, snow-blanketed fields, steamy geysers and woolly animals make for memorable images. Tours can be booked in advance when you book your lodging.

9. Enjoy the Mammoth Hot Springs area.

The travertine terraces formed by the hot springs bubbling through the limestone look like frozen waterfalls year-round. With fewer visitors, take your time admiring the formations.

10. Book lodging on shorter notice.

Not everyone can plan nearly a year in advance. For summer, it's not unusual for certain dates in Yellowstone's lodges to be booked many months in advance. Except for Christmas week, winter is the one time of the year when you can find rooms even on short notice.
